DETAILED ACTION

This action is in response to the amendment filed on December 22, 2004. The abstract, specification and claims 1-3,, 8, 9 and 12 have been amended. Claims 1-12 remain pending.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Lentz et al. '494 which discloses an apparatus and method of controlling shift shock by controlling clutch pressure during gear shifts based upon slip using integral proportional feedback control. Note particularly column 6, line 33 to column 7, line 66.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Fujita et al. (EP 0565383 A1) in view of Lentz et al. '494. Fujita et al. discloses an apparatus and method of controlling shift shock by controlling clutch pressure during gear shifts based upon slip using feedback control. As pointed out in applicant's remarks accompanying the amendment filed on December 22, 2004, Fujita et al. differs from the presently claimed method and apparatus in that Fujita et al. does not disclose the integral-proportional feedback control.

Lentz et al. provides evidence that it was known in the art at the time the invention was made to control clutch pressure during gear shifts based upon slip using integral proportional feedback control. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to employ integral-proportional feedback control in the control of Fujita's transmission in order to realize the desirable advantages pointed out by Lentz et al. at column 7, lines 9-66.

Double Patenting

The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. See In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and, In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent is shown to be commonly owned with this application. See 37 CFR 1.130(b).

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claims 1-11 are rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 11-15 of U.S. Patent No. 6,480,777 B1 in view of Lentz et al. '494. As pointed out in applicant's remarks accompanying the amendment filed on December 22, 2004, the apparatus defined by claims 11-15 of the '777 patent differs from the presently claimed apparatus in that the apparatus of claims 1-11 of the present application require integral-proportional feedback control.

Lentz et al. provides evidence that it was known in the art at the time the invention was made to control clutch pressure during gear shifts based upon slip using integral proportional feedback control. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to employ integral-proportional feedback control in the control of the transmission defined by claims 11-15 of the '777 patent in order to realize the desirable advantages pointed out by Lentz et al. at column 7, lines 9-66.

Claim 12 is rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1-10 of U.S. Patent No. 6,480,777 B1 in view of Lentz et al. '494. As pointed out in applicant's remarks accompanying the amendment filed on December 22, 2004, the method defined by claims 1-10 of the '777 patent differs from the presently claimed method in that the method of claim 12 of the present application require integral-proportional feedback control.

Lentz et al. provides evidence that it was known in the art at the time the invention was made to control clutch pressure during gear shifts based upon slip using integral proportional feedback control. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to employ integral-proportional feedback control in the method defined by claims 1-10 of the '777 in order to realize the desirable advantages pointed out by Lentz et al. at column 7, lines 9-66.
